Disgraceful Business.

There has been secretly circulated through the mails without even postmarks an anonymous circular, libelous in its character, against Daniel F. Beatty of Washington, N. J., proprietor of the Beatty Piano and Beatty's celebrated Golden Tongue Parlor Organs.

It is supposed to have been done by competitors in the business, as none others would be to the trouble and expense, even if they had no fear of the punishment if detected, and the cause is attributed to the fact that Mr. Beatty has been making a very successful war upon high prices in those instruments.

We have received from Mr. Beatty the following open letter addressed to him by the officials and prominent men of his own town.

WASHINGTON, N. J., July 5, 1877.
To Daniel F. Beatty, Esq.:

It having come to our knowledge that communications written with an intent to falsify you and injure your business, have appeared in a certain periodical, we therefore, as citizens of this place—having known you for years—consider it an act of justice to you to pronounce all such communications to be entirely uncalled for and slanderous, and endorse you as being, so far as we have ever been able to judge, a man of sterling integrity and prompt in all your business transactions. Signed, Nathan Hilts, Mayor; Alphens Babcock, G. A. Thatcher, Henry Winter, and Wm. E. Cummins, Councils; Joseph Yteit, Judge of the Court; James H. Groff, Vice President, and P. H Hann, Cashier First National Bank; Rev. J. J. Reed, Pastor M. E. Church (acquainted but few months); J. V. Creveling, Jos. A. Shrope and John C. Winter, Justices of the Peace; John Gardner, Sheriff, and Richard B. Shaffer, Deputy Sheriff of Warren county; A. W. Creveling, General Merchant; Philip Johnston, late Assessor, and others.

I certify that I am acquainted with the hand writing of the above, and recognize all of them as genuine. The gentlemen are of our best citizens, and I fully concur in the letter.

OSCAR JEFFERY,
Counselor-at-Law and Notary Public.

We can hardly conceive of a more complete answer to such a libel than the above letter, but Mr. Beatty requests all interested to address him for full reply, and asks for information touching the parties circulating the libel if any can be obtained, with a view to their prosecution and punishment.

BEATTY'S ORGANS.—Having furnished one of Beatty's fine Parlor organs for the Heath House, Schooley Mountain, N. J., we are in receipt of an acknowledgement, under date of Thanksgiving day, in which Mrs. J. W. Coleman, wife of the host, says: "We are also thankful for the additional pleasure of all, in listening to the delightful tones of the beautiful organ that now ornaments our parlor, it having arrived just in time for the day. Our daughter is perfectly infatuated with it, and handles it very nicely. We were handsomely received by Mr. Beatty at his warerooms."—ALPINE CHRONICLE.

DID HE TELL A LIE?

A good story is told of a ship owner of Liverpool, which will bear repeating. One merchant was a Quaker, and prided himself on his honesty. He would not have told a downright falsehood to save the value of his best ship. Jacob suffered one of his ships to set sail from Calcutta for home without any insurance upon either vessel or cargo. At length he became uneasy. He was confident his ship had encountered bad weather, and he feared for her safety. In this strait he went to his friend Isaac He called him friend, though we are under the impression that Isaac was one of the children of Israel. "Friend Isaac," he said, "I would like for thee to insure my ship which is at sea. I should have done it before, but have carelessly neglected it. If thee canst have the policy signed, all ready for delivery, at three o'clock on the afternoon of the morrow, I will send and get it, and send thee the money in full."

Isaac did not seem to be anxious to insure the ship, but upon being assured that no unfavorable intelligence had been heard from her he said he would have the policy made out, to take effect on and after three o'clock of the following day, but to cover the ship and cargo from the date of her leaving India.

Early on the following morning Jacob received a message by the hand of a captain just arrived, to the effect that his ship was stranded and her cargo lost. This was very unfortunate.

Should Friend Isaac happen to hear the news before the policy was made out, he would not make it at all; or, if it was made and not signed, he would not sign it. What should he do? He wanted to act honestly. It would not be right to let Isaac go and make out that policy under such circumstances. Finally he hit upon a plan. He summoned his confidential clerk, and sent him with this message:

"Tell friend Isaac that I have heard from my ship, and if the policy is not signed he need not sign it.

The clock was close upon the stroke of three when the clerk arrived. Friend Jacob's message was delivered. The The ship had been heard from, and if the policy was not signed, he need not sign it.

"I think I am in season to save it," the clerk said.

"No, sir," answered Isaac, promptly and very emphatically. Now, in truth, the policy of insurance had not been signed, for the insurer had been in doubt; but when he heard the message he judged at once that the ship was safe, and that Jacob sought to save the heavy item of premium he had agreed to pay.

"No, sir," he said; "you are not in time. It is past three o'clock. The policy is signed. I will go and get it.

He slipped out and hastily finished and signed the policy, and, having dried the ink, he brought it to the clerk, demanding in return the sum which had been agreed upon. The money was paid and the policy was taken home to Friend Jacob, who received it very gladly. The end we can readily imagine: and it is not difficult to judge which of the two felt most sore over the matter.

The French Consul at Yokohama has presented to the Jardin d'Acclimation a specimen of the polype meduseire, which possesses the singular property of converting water into vinegar. The first day, on being put into one of the tanks, it succeeded in getting rid of its neighbors. By what means would have remained unknown, had not Geoffry Saint Hilaire analyzed the water, when he found he had before him a vinegar polypus, one of the most curious animals in creation. The body, on being placed in pure water, secretes in a few minutes an acetic solution, which afterward become transformed into vinegar.

A writer in the Golden Rule, speaking of the ventilation of farm buildings, declares that "some farmers have an atmosphere in their stables as bad as that in a common school." This is almost incredible. That farmers can thus be so reckless of the health of their stock is one of the strangest things in nature.

AN OLD HOUSE.

There is something in an old house that can never be in a new one. The new one may be handsomer, it may have higher ceilings and broader panes of glass, a mediæval mantelpiece and French paper on the walls and Persian rugs You may be proud of it, but you loved the old house—the dear old place, almost as old as the great trees at the door. A tall man could touch the ceilings with his palm, and the great mantelpieces were stiff and ugly: but there in the firelight, used to sit once upon a time, the old grandmother with her knitting, while the children climbed on her knee and she told them stories of her youth.

Out of that window—the little window with the diamond panes—she had looked to see her young husband coming home after a long days hunt, flushed with exercise, bright and handsome. There lay the great red deer he had shot; yonder the dogs were kennelled—the great brown eyed dogs.

One of their race then unborn, sometimes stands beside her as she tells these tales, old and blind and toothless, and there are no deer now. Yes, up that road she had ridden herself a gay young bride, coming for the first time to the husband's house full of hope and joy. There her babes had been born, grown to be men and women and gone forth.

Out of the door went at last her husband's long funeral train, and nothing was left her of her life but its memories. There she sat thinking and knitting, telling the old stories. How could she be so content, the young people often thought.

The tall clock stood in the hall ticked as it had done for seventy years. In the glass cupboard were stored a sacred tea service with gilt edges and a silver teapot that had been a wedding present.

"Fox's Martyrs" and the "Pilgrim's Progress" were in the bookcase and the big Bible on the stand, and there were black profiles of choked-looking gentlemen and ladies, with wondrous puffs on their heads, on the walls; up in the bedrooms were rag carpets and high post beds and chests of drawers and long presses. How many heads had rested on those pillows? What happy dreams had been dreamed, what bitter tears shed!

And down in the parlor, with its hard, upright sofa, guests, with strange dullness of which no one dreamed, had been entertained, and lovers had wooed and won, and doubtless there had been little tragedies, such as go on between lovers through all the generations. Story after story has told itself in the old house.

They are not all happy ones, but they make the old house different from a new one. Memories lurk in the very walls; and who shall say that the spirits of those who lie at rest in the churchyard yonder, under tombstones on which moss has grown, do not sometimes flit through it—unseen but felt—bringing softened emotions and tender recollections as they pass.

The very trees in the garden are not as other trees. They have their stories. Under this a first kiss was taken; under that hands met in an eternal parting.

Down in the orchard is a baby's grave—the baby would be fifty years old if he lived to-day—but only a little while ago his mother sat there and shed a tear over it.

The new house is fine and costly and modern, but there is no poetry in it, and there will not be until at least two generations have made it an old house and haunted it with sweet ghosts, as they did the old one.

"Which is the largest gland?" asked a Chicago medical professor of the newest arrival in his class the other day. The student buried himself in deep and attentive thought for a moment, and then, brightening up suddenly, exclaimed, "The largest gland, sir, is—En-gland!" Then the professor kindly led the youth aside, and pathetically advised him to think no more of medicine, but to join a minstrel show or enter an army.

An exchange says "Lord Macauley made it a rule to pay all bills within twenty-four hours." Of course that means twenty-four hours after he got the money to pay them with. The rule is an excellent one, and should be imitated.

Dr. Fordyce Baker says that "dancing is a good thing; it detracts women's minds from the contemplation of their own symptoms, and thereby circumvents an evil."

He who knows the world will not be too bashful. He who knows himself will not be impudent.

It's an ill wind that occupies the time of the Legislature with a long speech.

The Pay of Lecturers.

B. Redpath, of Boston, makes all Henry Ward Beechers' engagements, and it is stated that he has him down this season for eighty lectures, at $500 each, or $40,000 in all. Theodore Tilton lectured eight months last year and cleared about $9,000. His terms, when he makes special engagements, average $150 per night. Dr. E. H. Chapin commands from $125 to $150 in the lecture room, and delivers about forty lectures during the season. George W. Curtis is out of the field for the present. Wendell Phillips will not go more than a day's journey from his home. His price is $200, but he frequently takes less, even when that sum is agreed upon, if the audience is not large enough to pay. Gough takes better than any other man on the lectures he is able to deliver. Frederick Douglass averages about forty nights in the season, and his price is $100. Prof. Doremus, the chemist, commands from $150 upward, according to the elaborateness of his illustrations. Du Chaillu is expected back from Europe in time for the season. He does not demand more than $115, and will not take less. Dr. Hepworth, Dr. Gallaher, and Dr. Hayes, the Arctic explorer, command each $100. The Rev. Robert Collyer, of Chicago, is a favorite, and easily gets $125. Frank Beard, the artist, gets $100. John G. Saxe is at present on the invalid list, but when able to lecture his price is likewise $100.

Ladies who succeed on the platform command almost as high figures as men. Grace Greenwood can get fifty engagements at $100 each. Mrs. Abby Sage Richardson asks the same amount. Mrs. Waller is good for $125 to $150 every night. Anna Dickinson tops them all. The price that successful lecturers now ask and get is exhorbitant in comparison with the figures before the war. Up to 1860; the most popular lecturer in the country could not command more than $60, and very few could get that sum. Beecher often lectured for $40 or $50, and considered himself well paid.

A Great Evil.

The foe of American social life is in the tendency to luxury and effeminacy among the well-to-do young women of our American cities and large towns. They do not realize how this dreadful mania for expensive pleasures, and a life of alternate idleness and amusement, is destroying their health, abolishing true marriage, feeding the flame of gross sensuality and intemperance among young men, and saddening the hopes of the best parents in the land. Some of them will never know it in this world. But most of them have no real purpose to waste their lives in this wretched way. And it is a high crime in mothers, teachers, ministers of religion and the public press to pander to this insanity. Thousands of good hearted young girls are sacrificed every year when a little wise and loving guidance could save them. But we feel that they should be told that unless they change this life they will pass away like the flowers of June, and a more hardy and resolute class occupy their places.

American society will shed every class of triflers, male or female, that does not do its work, as the forests shed their withered leaves, Let them awake from their dream of social indulgences; learn to live out of doors; to build up their health; to cultivate more simple tastes in dress, and more moderation in pleasure; study domestic economy; study social skill and tact; fit themselves for the noblest positions ever yet offered to their sex, and learn that women is the soul of American life, not the tinsel on its garment.—Universalist Quarterly.

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION.—Within three years three lampblack factories in Massachusetts have been destroyed by fire. Perspiration from the hand, a drop of water, a bit of grease, or a sprinkle of oil will create the combustion, which will start the lampblack aglow like charcoal, and so ignite the package. In lampblack factories, while great precaution is taken to prevent fires, a rainy or sharp, frosty day will start a dampness upon the inside of a window pane, and the flying particles of dust lighting upon this creates a spark, which, communicating with the pile, sends a glow of fire with wonderful rapidity through the building. In cleaning up the smoke-galleries, if the men let a drop of perspiration fall into a pile, they instantly scoop up the lampblack in and about where it lodges, and carry it out of the building.

"Doctor, my daughter seems to be going blind, and she's just getting ready for the wedding, too! Oh, dear, what is to be done?" "Let her go right on with the wedding, madame, by all means. If anything can open her eyes, marriage will.

In relation to the adulteration of candy.

Senate Bill No 1.—an Act to establish and maintain free public libraries and reading rooms.

Relative to the registration of births, marriages and deaths.

FIREMEN.—The Senate has passed an Act amending Section 3,335 of the Political Code in relation to volunteer firemen. It amends that section by providing the number of fire companies that may be organized in towns, etc., and the number of members that may belong to each company. There must not be more than one company to each 1,000 inhabitants, nor more than 65 men in a company. Section 3,337 exempts members from the payment of poll and road taxes and from military and jury duty.

A town of 1,000 inhabitants or under, may require an engine or a hose company and a hook and ladder company, both necessary where there is a water supply, but under this bill but one company could be organized. The number of men allowed is too great as in many towns the number allowed—65 men—would take in all the available jurymen in the place. The number should not be grerter than 45, and then, again, why should they be exempt from poll and road taxes? Military and jury duty is sufficient compensation.

The members of the Legislature and leading men of both parties propose a union of the Republicans and Democrats to elect good men to the Constitutional Convention, and throw politics aside. It is supposed that the two State Central Committees will meet and issue a joint address to the people of this State.

NOT DEAD YET.—Notwithstanding the waywardness of our President has disgusted thousands of Republicans in the North, the late elections in the Eastern States show that the Republican Party is still the party of the people; that it is far from being a dead party.

The Bodie Standard has commenced life well, already having a libel suit on its hands. Mary A. Kingbaum, of that flourishing camp, having commenced a suit of that character.

At the Oakland election on Monday last the workingmen elected their entire city ticket, with the exception of Marshal and Superintendent of Schools.

New Election Law.

The Joint Committee on Elections held a meeting on Sunday last—a good day for such purposes (?) and agreed to report Tuttle's election bill. It provides that County Clerks shall erase from the Great Register the names of all deceased or removed persons, and does away with printing the Great Register, but substitutes printed poll lists for each precinct. No person can vote unless his name appears on the poll-list, which is to be printed 28 days before the election. This does away with the old process of voting on certificates. It is to be hoped that a bill of this character will be passed. There is too much folderol about our present Registry law, and it is time we had a more stringent, and yet simple, statute governing the election franchise in this State.

ANOTHER RAILROAD.—It is rumored that Peter Donahue, President of the San Francisco and North Pacific Railroad Company, has purchased the Marin Narrow Guage Railroad and will soon build a broad guage road from Petaluma to Sancelito. Such a road would bring the beautiful valley of Sonoma within a convenient distance of San Francisco, and would enable the well-to-do business man of the Bay City to have his homestead in that lovely valley to retire to after the business of the day is over.

A LAW.—The Governor has signed the bill for copyrighting vignettes on election tickets, to prevent the distribution of bogus tickets.

By this law the county Committees of the several political parties are to file with the County Clerk a copy of a vignette for their party ticket, and it is made a misdemeanor to print any other than the regular party ticket under the party vignette. This does away with the uniform ballot with which Californians are so familiar.

They do things very handsomely in the San Francisco police department. A man from Alameda was recently garroted and robbed in that lively city. The police happened to be on hand—for a wonder—and arrested the Alameda man and took him to the station house, and afterward went to look for the robber. It will become as unpleasant to be robbed in that city as it is to be a witness of an affray and then be imprisoned a few months as a witness. What a country!

AN HONEST CONFESSION.—Senator Satterwhite was appointed a committee of one to examine and report upon four bills relative to insurance. The Senator reported that he had read the bills and did not know anything about them, and therefore could make no recommendation. This was an honest confession, and we doubt not that other committees of the Legislature have been in the same fix, but have not been candid enough to acknowledge it.

Senators Booth and Jones are preparing speeches on the Chinese question, to be delivered shortly.

NEW TO-DAY.

NEW COMPANY.—Articles of incorporation of the Altura Mining Company—to operate in Alpine county—have been filed in the office of the Secretary of State. Capital, $10,000,000, in shares of $100 each. Directors—Edward Barnes, M. G. Cobb, B. W. Madge, B. F. Bivens and Daniel Buck. The principal place of business will be in San Francisco. This Company has been organized to work the Barnes claim in Hope Valley.

ITS DEPTH.—It is said that the depth of snow on the summit of the Central Pacific will not exceed nine feet. If this statement is correct the snow must have settled into a mass of ice, as there must be more than that amount on our summit (Big Tree road) which is much further south than the C. P.

COMMENCED WORK.—Work has this week been inaugurated at the Schenectady mine and mill by the new purchasers—a San Francisco company—under the the superintendency of N. J. Coleman, late of the Kossuth mine. The mill is being put in running order.

THE NEEDHAM

Musical Cabinet

THIS new and wonderful Instrument enables any one, whether understanding music or not, to play any desired melody or harmony, sacred or secular, from the most plaintive dirge to the most lively dance music. It possesses a mechanism of marvelous simplicity, requiring but the intelligence of a child to manipulate, yet capable of reproducing, without limitation, the musical compositions of the PAST, PRESENT and FUTURE. The execution is faultless, strict in melody, harmony and rhythm, and the instrument is eminently adapted for Sunday Schools, prayer and revival meetings, home devotional exercises, and in all cases where good, correct music is required, and no musician is at hand to perform. Nothing to Do.

The brave man or woman will always find something to do. I know a little woman who, by her husband's illness, has been reduced to work for a livelihood. She will do anything that is honest. One week she does some copying. The next week she is at her sewing machine; a friend's eyes are weak and she happened to say she was looking for a seamstress. At once our heroine (for are not such heroines?) stamped on her pride, which squirmed horribly and said, "Remember she was your bridesmaid, and doesn't know how very poor you are; you'd better pretend you know of a seamstress." Down came the foot, and the words are spoken bravely: "If I may take the work home, I will be very glad to do it." Another time there is sudden sickness, and a nurse is required. She goes; and so, gradually, she acquired a reputation for intense earnestness in fulfilling her duty—that of earning money for her children—and, one thing leading to another, she learns how to support her family comfortably and with ease. Where there's a will, one can generally find a way.

VALUABLE RULES.—Among the questions which were given to a school at a recent examination were the following:

Upon what does good digestion depend?

Upon eating slowly, and don't go fooling after you eat.

What are the rules for preserving the teeth?

Brush them at breakfast, dinner and supper, at seven o'clock, twelve o'clock, and between six and seven.

Why is cleanliness of the skin important?

If you leave it on, the dirt will soak through you, and when you want to make it come off you can't.

What are the bygienic rules for good brain power?

Eat fish.

What are the rules for healthful bathing?

Take castile soap and a clean towel. Clean thoroughly.

What are the rules for the proper times and manner of eating?

Breakfast between six and seven. Dinner between twelve and one. Supper between five and seven.

A farmer who had sent a bale of cotton to a warehouse instructed a merchant to have the same sold. The merchant complied with the request, and the staple was disposed of. The farmer, upon examining his statement, was heard muttering to himself: "Drayage, wharfage, mistakeage, storage, leakage, weighage—well, I'll take the balance out in fightage."

Not far from Salzburg, Austria, is a great mountain which consists of nothing but beautiful marble. The stone masons cut out blocks and columns of it, take them to the great city, and build palaces of them, while the chips are used to make playing marbles for the young folks

Humming-birds were supposed, even to Buffon's day, to live on the nectar of flowers, but it has now been proved that they eat insects also. A gentleman in Jamaica, who kept some, found that they must have insect food.

Lemon juice used as a gargle is said by a French physician to be a specific against diphtheria and similar throat troubles, which he has successfuly used for eighteen years.

An old coin has been unearthed in Jacksonville, Florida, dated 1694. It is a Carolina halfpenny, and has upon it this legend: "God preserve Carolina and the Lord's proprietor."

The Massachusetts Supreme Court has affirmed the decision that a Boston Jew must pay a fine for keeping his store open on Sunday, although he closed it on Saturday, his own Sabbath.

Hard speech between those who have loved is hideous in memory, like the sight of greatness and beauty sunk into vice and rags.

Don't linger where "your love lies dreaming." Wake her up and tell her to get the breakfast.

Hens have an ambition similar to men, They all want to get on the highest roost.

That Terrible Scourge.

Fever and ague, and its congener, bilious remittent, besides affections of the stomach, liver and bowels, produced by miasmatic air and water, are both eradicated and prevented by the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a purely vegetable elixir, indorsed by physicians, and more extensively used as a remedy for the above class of disorders, as well as for many others, than any medicine of the age. A languid circulation, a torpid state of the liver, a want of vital stamina, are conditions peculiarly favorable to malarial diseases. They are, however, surely remedied by the great Preventive, which, by invigorating the system and endowing it with regularity as well as vigor, provides it with a resistant power which enables it to withstand disorders not only of a malarial type, but a host of others to which feeble and ill regulated systems are subject. The Bitters are a safe as well as searching eradicant, and have widely superseded that dangerous drug, quinine, which palliates but does not eradicate malaria.
